You aren't the only one with this problem. My bimbo neighbor drives her Mercedes 60 mph down our street. Thankfully, my kids are always in the back, so I havent had to worry much about it. But it still makes me angry. My father lives on a busy street. And the cars fly by his house. I happen to drive a Ford Crown Victoria. Looks like a police car.

"On mornings when Anouk slept in, I stood on our balcony and looked down at the street. The pavement was so far away that I could no longer see any cracks. I watched people trotting down our street without ever raising their heads. I imagined hundreds of men and women who shared their lives with two partners.

But suddenly he kissed me. I didn't really like him, and I was overwhelmed. I said I had to use the bathroom and rushed out, where I sat in the grass with the dog, waiting to go home. Later, when Annie's dad was driving me home, I saw an ambulance come down our street. My first thought was, "Oh my God, I hope my parents are okay."
